Charters and Chamber Pots: Aspects of Mediaeval Paisley
Paisley Museum

High Street
Paisley
PA1 2BA

This year there will be Europe-wide celebrations for the 1100th anniversary of the establishment of the Abbey of Cluny in France. Cluny became the acknowledged leader of a whole network of priories across the continent, and Paisley Abbey was founded as a Cluniac monastery in 1163. This exhibition aims to explore the wide-ranging influence of Paisley Abbey. It will feature mediaeval items from the collections including sculpted stones, carved woodwork, manuscripts and some of the material illustrating the daily life of the monks excavated from the Abbey's Great Drain.

Multi Storey
Gallery of Modern Art
Royal Exchange Square
Glasgow G1 3AH

Multi-story is a collaborative arts project based in the distinctive Red Road housing estate, north Glasgow. Multi-story was established in 2004 by Street Level Photoworks in partnership with The Scottish Refugee Council and the YMCA.

It supports the integration of asylum seekers and refugees through creative activity, celebrating the different cultural traditions coexisting within the changing community.

In 2007 plans for the demolition of all seven Red Road tower blocks were announced, signalling the end for these iconic Glasgow landmarks.

This unique exhibition showcases artworks created in the last two years by local residents from over 15 countries. The artworks have been produced with community organisations and artists Lindsay Perth and Iseult Timmermans.

Participants used traditional and contemporary art to explore issues around regeneration and the creation of new communities. They investigated residents' views, documenting the estate and recording memories.

Fiona Tan TOMORROW
Gallery of Modern Art
Royal Exchange Square
Glasgow
G1 3AH

As part of the 2010 Glasgow International Festival of Visual Art (Gi), GoMA presents the video installation Tomorrow (2005) by internationally renowned artist Fiona Tan.

An installation on two screens, this work is an atmospheric portrait of a group of schoolchildren that challenges assumptions about identity, race and ethnicity. It is the first solo exhibition of Tan's work in Scotland.

Tan lives and works in Amsterdam and is best known for skilfully produced and visually rich photography, film and video. Characteristically, her artworks explore issues related to human representation – such as concepts of identity and nationality – often through portraits of people or places.

Doubt

Tron Theatre

63 Trongate

Glasgow

G1 5HB

Description: In 1960's New York a young nun teaching at a Catholic school finds herself caught in the middle of a war of words. For Father Flynn, a compassionate and gifted priest, is under suspicion from the watchful and rigidly authoritarian nun, Sister Aloysius; suspicion of a crime of which she has no evidence but about which she has no doubt... Utterly absorbing and full of twists and turns, John Patrick Shanley's award-winning play asks difficult questions through a deceptively simple story. It is a dazzlingly written, gripping battle of wits with brilliantly drawn characters and deep understanding of human pride and frailty.

Times: Tuesday 1 June - Saturday 5 June at 19.30, matinee on Saturday 5 June 14.30.

Prices: Tuesday - Thursday, Saturday matinee £10.50 (concessions £6.50). Friday and Saturday £14.50, (concessions £10.50).

age in Iran during the Islamic Revolution. It is through the eyes of this precocious and outspoken nine year old that we see peoples' hopes dashed as fundamentalists take power – forcing the veil on women and imprisoning thousands. Though she outsmarts the “social guardians” and discovers punk, ABBA and Iron Maiden, the daily fear that permeates life in Iran is palpable, as bombs fall on Tehran during the Iran/Iraq war and those close to her fall foul of the regime... Based on Marjane's four graphic novels, this striking animation covers her childhood in Iran, her escape to an education in Vienna and then a bittersweet return to her native country.

Keane
Barrowlands
Candleriggs
Glasgow
G1 1NQ

Keane are an English piano rock band from Battle, East Sussex, formed in 1995. The group currently comprises Tim Rice-Oxley (piano, backing vocals), Tom Chaplin (lead vocals) and Richard Hughes (drums, percussion). Their original line-up included founder and guitarist Dominic Scott, who left in 2001.

Keane are known for using a piano as the lead instrument instead of guitars, differentiating them from most other rock bands.

The inclusion of a distorted piano effect in 2006 and various synthesizers were a common feature in their music that back then combined the piano rock sound used during their first album and the piano rock sound which developed on the second and third albums. Keane have also used instruments like the violin, saxophone and acoustic guitar.

Arun Ghosh Sextet

Tron Theatre

63 Trongate

Glasgow

G1 5HB

Description: Conceived in Calcutta, bred in Bolton, matured in Manchester and now living in London, clarinettist Arun Ghosh's musical vision and vocabulary reflects his rich geographical heritage. His Indo-Jazz Sextet plays original music of South Asian origin with a contemporary jazz attitude, rocking urban beats and the passion of punk. Sweet and timeless melodies give birth to soaring improvisations and raag explorations, driven by a heady mix of dub-reggae bass, tabla trickery and ferocious drum explosions.

William Shakespeare's The Rape of Lucrece

directed by Gareth Armstrong

Paisley Arts Centre

New Street

Paisley

PA1 1EZ

The Rape of Lucrece is a brilliant, brutal narrative poem by William Shakespeare giving an account of the terrible crime of rape and its dreadful consequences for victim and perpetrator.

Gareth Armstrong brings the poem to life on the stage. Simple and stark: a single actor, a bare stage –rapist and victim springing to searing life.

"...great acting meets classic writing.....Shakespearean acting at its absolute finest".

Dirty Dancing (12A)

Paisley Arts Centre

New Street

Paisley

PA1 1EZ

Headstrong 17-year-old Baby Houseman hardly expects her family's usual summer vacation in the Catskills to be momentous. But then Baby spies Johnny Castle, the resort's dance instructor from the wrong side of the tracks. Johnny's facing a crisis: his dance partner and friend Penny is pregnant and has reluctantly decided to get an abortion. This leaves Johnny a solo act--until Baby agrees to take Penny's place. She has to learn how to dance first, however, and as Johnny teaches her the choreography's sexy, seductive moves, the pair fall in love. But Baby's father believes that Johnny is the creep who got Penny pregnant, and he furiously orders Baby to end the relationship. Baby knows that Johnny's innocent--and with her feisty idealism and his dance talent, the two will prove to Baby's father that their love is worth fighting for.
