Phase 2 Development of the Recovery Plan

- STERG submitted their recommended, short term (2 year) recovery proposals to the Scottish Government on 27th August. These proposals are a result of the extensive stakeholder engagement work that was carried out by Toposophy as well as consultation with the Task Force and other industry representatives.
The proposals recommend continuing with seven of the Phase 1 projects beyond the current financial year and recommend six new proposals to address gaps.

It must be emphasised that funding is yet to be secured for the Phase 2 proposals. STERG are awaiting a response from the Scottish Government on next steps.

The proposals were acknowledged in the Programme for Government which was announced on 7th September. The PfG states that SGov will “...consider the best approach to Phase 2 recovery work, covering the following 2 years...”

A public document which outlines the recovery recommendations will be published in due to course.

2. Sector Issues To Be Raised At STERG

Association of Scottish Visitor Attractions, Gordon Morrison

The visitor attraction sector is still in survival mode and not recovery, this is critical and needs to remain front of mind for STERG and SGov.

ASVA’s latest survey results are currently being compiled. Over 350 visitor attractions responded. Results so far would suggest that businesses are still in survival mode. This is evidenced by how much reserves attractions have in the bank, which is not very much, the winter is expected to be challenging. The Days Out Incentive scheme should be able to help over the winter.

July visitor numbers have recently been published by ASVA. Visitor numbers for July 2021 vs July 2019 are -62%, year to date (Jan-July) visitor numbers are -75% vs 2019. These numbers are reflected across the board, small and large attractions, urban and rural locations. Outdoor wildlife attractions have performed better than others. It was highlighted that visitor attractions have only had the opportunity to recover from 9th August.

Sail Scotland, Alan Rankin

The season for the cruising and charter sector finishes at the end of September. The sector has been moving bookings from last year to this year and where there has been bookings that couldn’t be accommodated this year, they been moved to next year. Although businesses have been busy, a significant cash flow issue has been created which will make the winter challenging. This is a sector which remains in survival mode.

The secondary spend contributed by high spending individuals in this sector, to rural (island) economies, cannot be overlooked. If this secondary spend is no longer there next year due to business failure over the winter then it should be recognised that there will be an impact on the islands.

It was noted that Sail Scotland are about to issue a survey to operators in the sector. Concern was expressed over impending Sail Scotland membership renewals given the continued uncertainty.

There is concern about future Sectoral vulnerability, particularly the smaller sectors. While it is good to see the destination and place agenda develop, clarity is required on the longer term strategy for sector groups (which undoubtedly proved their worth during Covid).

Scottish Agritourism, Caroline Millar

Destinations and regions tend to be aligned to and supported by Local Authorities or Enterprise Agencies. There needs to be a better strategy at a national level for sector groups who operate pan-Scotland.
Scottish Tourism Emergency Response Group (STERG)

- Labour supply continues to be an issue for Agritourism businesses and needs to remain on the STERG agenda. It was noted that Labour crisis talks have taken place at a national level within the Agricultural sector.

A meeting with Scottish Agritourism, STA, NFUS, NFU, Road Haulage Association and Scotland Food & Drink will be held next Thursday, 7.00pm-8.30pm on Zoom to discuss the labour crisis across these sectors which are interrelated. Anyone is welcome to join the meeting.

Action: CM to forward details of the meeting to the group.

RG noted that the sector recruitment crisis remains on the STERG agenda as a standing item.

- Food and drink supply issues into the tourism & hospitality sector is a concern (CO2). Food and drink price rises are expected which will impact the tourism & hospitality supply chain just as businesses are trying to recover from Covid. Brexit, labour supply issues and increased haulage rates are all impacting the fragile food and drink supply chain.

- The second meeting of the growth strategy group will take place this afternoon. This work is critical for the future of the Scottish Agritourism sector. The strategy will be launched at the Scottish Agritourism conference on 9th & 10th November.

Association of Scotland’s Self-Caterers, Fiona Campbell

- An ASSC summary note will be circulated with the meeting minutes.

- Many businesses are still in survival and not yet in recovery. In addition, within the self-catering sector many businesses are worried about whether they will have a business in two years’ time if the SGov continues with their legislation on Short Term Lets licensing. This issue needs to be back on the STERG agenda.

The work of RG and RD behind the scenes with SGov on this issue was acknowledged and welcomed.

- The STA Council call took place yesterday, it was highlighted that the agenda appeared to be driven by hospitality. It was noted that small, rural, micro tourism businesses should be remembered and put higher up the agenda.

UKHospitality (Scotland), Leon Thompson

- Vaccine passports
  - There is concern that this will have a much wider impact than at first expected
  - Clarity is still required on many areas, e.g. weddings and business events
  - There is a risk that visitors from England will no longer want to come to Scotland
  - UKH will be working with the SGov on guidance
  - Investment in communications is needed, targeted at both the industry (to explain what they need to do) and the English market, to boost visitor confidence and ensure Scotland doesn’t lose the Christmas and New Year markets.

- Cost of living
  - Costs to business are increasing, e.g. utility providers are asking businesses to pay up front, this is having a major impact on cash flow.
  - Consumers are likely to have less money in their pocket (rising energy prices, rises in national insurance) this will impact discretionary spend such as hospitality and short breaks. VAT rates in hospitality are due to increase to 12.5% from 1st October, this may impact spending patterns.
Scottish Tourism Emergency Response Group (STERG)

- Staffing
  - Despite furlough ending on 30th September the UK Gov will not change its position on migration policy.
  - STA and UKH (Scotland) will meet with Iain Stewart, Minister for Scotland on 7th October
  - The SGov will need to look at how it can help increase the pool of talent that we have available, there is no short term solution to this and SGov need to recognise that they have an important role to play here.

- Business travel
  - An STR presentation at the UKH conference earlier this week highlighted that there is still great uncertainty around the timescale for the return of business travellers, particularly international business travellers. Speculation would suggest that international business travel may not resume until 2024 or 2025, clearly, we are some way off returning to 2019 levels.

Action: RG to follow up with Neil Brownlee on Vaccine passport for business events and the STR forecast for the return of business travel.

Scottish Guest House and B&B Alliance, Sinclair Williamson

The following points were raised via email by the SGHBBA after the meeting.

- The main concern for our members at the moment is the Scottish Government's approach to international travel. We are at a disadvantage yet again to England and the rest of Europe when it comes to attracting international travellers, which seems ludicrous when Covid case rates are lower in other European countries.
- Our sector are also concerned about the situation with energy suppliers and the uncertainty this will bring over the winter months when most of our members have seen significantly lower turnover this summer compared to pre-2019 summer turnovers.

3. Meeting Close

RG noted that this was his last meeting of the STERG sector group and that he would like to thank everyone for joining the calls and for their honest contributions over the last 9 months since the group started.
